Taxpayers Return from 'Unshackle' Albany Trip

By: Amy Young

More than 100 local taxpayers and business owners went to Albany to express their frustration over the state budget, tax structure, and what they call "government dysfunction."

Rochester Business Alliance President and CEO Sandy Parker said she warned state legislators that the people are watching.

"It is consistently hearing the message from them, we didn't do this," Parker said. "Well, yeah, maybe you didn't do it, but you were voted in to take care of it, so do that."

Parker said lawmakers did not offer sound solutions on how to fix the state's problems.
